

News Segment Analysis

Title of Oral Text: TVOK News interview with Hannah Alper

News Presenter: TVOK's Daniel

Topic(s) Explored: Daniel interviews kid activist, Hannah Alper, on how kids can change the world.

Non-Verbal Cues

Think about the things we communicate without words, including facial expression, gestures or movement, and eye contact.

Vocal Effects

Think about the vocal aspects of our delivery, including tone, pace, pitch, and volume.

Evidence from the Oral Text

Briefly explain where in the text you noticed the non-verbal cue and/or vocal effect.

News Segment Analysis

Non-Verbal Cues	Vocal Effects	Evidence from the Oral Text
Daniel makes friendly eye contact with camera and guest during the segment to engage the audience and guest	Welcoming and enthusiastic tone	During Daniel's introduction "WELCOME BACK TO TVO K NEWS, I'M YOUR NEWS ANCHOR, DANIEL, AND WE HAVE A VERY SPECIAL GUEST. HER NAME IS HANNAH ALPER,"
Daniel gestures with hands toward guest, kid activist Hannah Alper		Also, during Daniel's introduction
Daniel nods in agreement and responds to Hannah's message with "Wow.", "Yes." "That is so beautiful."	Daniel adjusts his volume and pitch to express, "This book is amazing!"	After Hannah discusses her inspirations for her book "MOMENTUS: SMALL ACTS, BIG CHANGE."

News Segment Analysis

Non-Verbal Cues	Vocal Effects	Evidence from the Oral Text
His facial expression tells the audience that he is interested and excited about the information that Hannah shares.		This happens throughout the segment. Daniel pays attention to Hannah and makes eye contact with the camera to show audience how he feels about the information shared.
	Daniel speaks more slowly than people do in daily life and in comparison, to Hannah. Quick Tip: News reporters often speak at a slower pace in order to be easily understood	Daniel maintains his slower pace or rate of speech throughout the segment.